

Good afternoon everyone,

VE Day Celebrations

We really hope your children (and yourselves) enjoyed our themed work leading up to VE Day this week. It should be a very special day tomorrow in many ways and one that I am sure we won't forget in years to come for many many reasons. I hope lots of our children join in the sing along to We'll Meet Again too.

There is a link on our Twitter and a celebratory set of slides coming soon into the children's google classroom showing a 'We'll Meet Again' video we made in school and some photographs to make us smile and also stimulate conversation.

What's Next?

I dare say you, like us, are waiting with bated breath for the Government's next set of advice around the lifting of some of the lockdown measures and whether schools will re-open as schools or as places of provision and if they do re-open, under what kind of rules and regulations. Please be totally reassured we will be working with the Academy Trust to ensure that we follow the science advice from Public Health England and the Government to keep all our children and staff as safe as possible. As soon as we have further information we will share this with you as we understand that these are anxious times for everyone.

As always, we will do the best we can with the guidance and tools we have at our disposal, whilst also continuing to build our systems of home learning with you all as effectively as possible.

Many thanks for your understanding in this matter.

Don't forget next week

1. Mr Dyson's weekly PE challenge on Twitter every Monday - a chance to be creative and post your ideas into the thread.
2. Our fresh weekly check-in on Monday in the google classrooms.
3. Log into the Ebor Trust's website to see how we are all doing in our 'Run Around The World' Challenge.

There are lots of interesting notes at the end of every day to read and a map plotting the route around the world. <https://www.eboracademytrust.co.uk/join-us-in-our-run-around-the-world/>

Finally a big thank you again for your kind and thoughtful messages of support this week. Stay safe and healthy everyone, and have some fun too!

Chris Evans
